

Quality Measure Improvement Guide for Aids to Daily Living

Problem: Maintaining or improving residents' daily living is important to attracting and retaining nursing home residents. It also is one of ten quality measures (QMs) in the Centers for Medicaid & Medicare Services (CMS) Five-Star Rating. Your facility's quality performance in ADLs is evaluated based on three CMS regulations:

F310 A resident's abilities in activities of daily living do not diminish unless circumstances of the individual's clinical condition demonstrate that diminution was unavoidable. This includes the resident's ability to: (i) Bathe, dress, and groom; (ii) Transfer and ambulate; (iii) Toilet; (iv) Eat; and (v) Use speech, language, or other functional communication systems.

Intent §483.25(a): The intent of this regulation is that the facility must ensure that resident's abilities in ADLs do not deteriorate unless the deterioration was unavoidable.

F311 A resident is given the appropriate treatment and services to maintain or improve his or her abilities specified in paragraph (a)(1)* of this section; interpretive guidelines.

Intent §483.25(a)(2): The intent of this regulation is to stress that the facility is responsible for providing maintenance and restorative programs that will not only maintain, but improve, as indicated by the resident's comprehensive assessment to achieve and maintain the highest practicable outcome.

F312 A resident who is unable to carry out activities of daily living receives the necessary services to maintain good nutrition, grooming, and personal and oral hygiene.

Intent §483.25(a)(3): The intent of this regulation is that the resident receives the care and services needed because he/she is unable to do their own ADL care independently.

Solution: To help you improve your nursing home's ADL quality outcomes—and its CMS Five-Star quality rating—Briggs has assembled the specific documentation, charting, education and training, and medical supplies you'll need. Remember, every Briggs form integrates industry best practices, and has been recognized by customers as best-of-class.
